

Where are they now?

Chifundo Nyambalo

Chifundo is 22 years old and joined Children in the Wilderness in 2008. He did his primary education at Kafulafula Primary School and then his secondary school education at New Era Secondary School from 2008 to 2011. When he could not find space in University, he applied for a job with Central African Wilderness Safaris. In 2012 he was employed as one of the general staff at Mvuu Camp in Liwonde National Park. He worked hard and showed interest in trying other tasks within the company. He then joined the guiding department and underwent guide trainings, and was later made a trainee guide.

In 2016 he went to Southern African Wildlife College for further training related to guiding and environmental management. Chifundo is one of the happiest, well developed Safari guides at Mvuu Camp in Liwonde National Park.

Chifundo volunteers as a CITW Camp Eco-Mentor every year. He is brilliant in the role of CITW Camp Logistics, and is passionate about teaching children about wildlife.

His goal is to become one of the top Managers in CAWS or National Parks, and would like to apply his ideas relating to ecotourism and rural development.
