

Where are they now?

Grace Konidaris

Grace is 24 years old and comes from Kitwe village near Livingstone. She completed her secondary education at Kalulusshi High School in 2011, where she obtained a full certificate.

In 2016, her passion for the environment and wildlife landed her at the Southern African Wildlife College in South Africa, where she studied a bridging course in Environmental Education and Nature Conservation for six months. Grace has successfully completed her practical training with the National Parks and Wildlife office in Livingstone.

Grace loves playing and working with children. Grace was invited to attend a Children in the Wilderness as an Eco-Mentor, tent leader and team leader. She excelled in teaching the children about 'living and non-living things'. On camp, she shared her tent with six girls whom she constantly advised on the dangers of alcohol abuse, drugs, teenage pregnancies and early marriages.
