

Where are they now?

Naledi Kgoba

Naledi was first involved with CITW in 2009 as an Eco-Club member and attended annual CITW camps while he was in school. He now regularly volunteers as an Eco-Mentor on CITW camps, and last year was a beneficiary of an SAWC bursary. He completed his practical work experience at Banoka Bush Camp.

Naledi is currently contracted with Wilderness Safaris in the Lenyanti concession, working as a trainee in different departments around camp – from front of house, to housekeeping. Once he has spent time in all the departments in camp, he will be employed in the department where he is most competent. It is Naledi's dream to become a field guide.

Naledi's journey with CITW – from a youngster at annual CITW camps, to an Eco-Mentor, and during his time at SAWC.
